Esmeralda was bred in 1957 by Frank Riethmuller in NSW, Australia. The rose Esmeralda is in fact a Lambertiana, a class of hybrids bred from multiflora and named after Peter Lambert, a German who gave us several roses such as Frau Karl Drushki and whose rose Trier was used by Joseph Pemberton to breed the range of Hybrid Musks.

The class is seldom recognised these days with most of the class going into floribunda.

Other Lambertianas by Riethmuller are Carabella, Claret Cup, Gay Vista and Honeyflow.
